Luxuriously plush, these microfibre cloths are extra gentle on even the most delicate skin. And they're created using sustainably sourced lyocell for an incredible cleansing experience that's also better for the planet.

Why they're better

- Norwex lyocell is made of wood cellulose from Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) certified sources
- It uses a very clean, eco-friendly, closed-loop manufacturing process
- BacLock®*, our exclusive micro silver agent, protects the cloth by inhibiting odour in the cloth, which means they're ready to use again and again
- Plush, extra-high pile provides extra absorbency

Caring for lyocell microfibre

- Machine washing and drying are recommended prior to initial use
- Machine wash cold, gentle cycle and tumble dry low
- Wash slightly dirty microfibre with your favourite Norwex detergent under cool running water and use again before laundering. Rinse thoroughly and hang to dry or drop in the dryer on low setting. When air drying, always hang to dry, as leaving darker colours of damp microfibre on surfaces may stain them.
- Launder microfibre with other lint-free laundry using a Norwex laundry detergent, which is free from fillers
- Do not use bleach. Do not use fabric softener when laundering microfibre as these additives coat the surface of the fibres.
- For best results, machine dry on low setting. Can also be hung to dry.

Did you know

- To help keep it soft, lyocell microfibre should always be washed in cold water
- Lyocell from Forest Stewardship Council (FSC)-certified forests means the forests are responsibly managed, socially beneficial, environmentally conscious and economically viable
- Our FSC-certified vendors cultivate the wood cellulose for use in our products. We selected vendors to support our Mission and minimise the concern of deforestation or ecological disruption.
- Lyocell is a fabric composed primarily of naturally derived wood cellulose
- Lyocell and microfibre make the perfect pair, combining long-lasting durability with next-level sustainability
- Typical soaps and cleansers can be harsh and drying to skin. This can be problematic for those with sensitive skin. Using a soft microfibre cloth with just water can help maintain the balance of delicate skin.
- Leaving a bit of moisture on your skin after showering can help it not to become too dry, especially if you help lock in that moisture with a good body lotion or moisturiser.
